o'clock burglars entered the shoe-repairing shop of M1. R. V. Jones, in the T. T. Templin building, on South Main street. An entrance was effected by breaking one of the side windows in the building. Mr. Templin, who, with his family. resides on the second floor of the building, heard the intruders as they were forcing the glass of the window. The noise of the oreaking glass frightened the members of the family who gave the alarm, and before an effort could be made to capture the men they made their escape. The police were notified and a search was at once instituted by Patrolmen Moreland and Judy, who, took into custody a white man who gave his name as George Brady. He had in his possession a pair of shoes which had been taken from the repair shop, and which was the only thing of value missing from the build-

Patrolman King had the men in charge, together with several other prisoners, returning them to jail, when at a point near the Windsor Hotel, Brown, one of the men accused of the robbery, made a dash for liberty. Patrolman King called to do not seem to regard conditions in him several times to stop, and when he continued his flight the officer sent several shots in the direction of the fleeing negro. Being unable to leave the other prisoners, King was unable to pursue the negro, and he made good his escape. The police of adjoining towns have been notified to be on the lookout for him.

EX-PARISIAN IS PROMOTED

The many friends of Mr. D. C. Mc-Namara, formerly =: Paris, will be gratified to learn of his continued success in the business world. Mr. Mc-Namara, who for some time was identified with a furniture manufactory in Grand Rapids, Mich., recently went to Boston, where he engaged in the same business and by his business integrity soon advanced to the positon of general salesman for the Derby Desk ('o., of Boston. As a recognition of his ability to hold down a more responsible position his employers on January 1 advanced him to the assistant general managership. This position carries with it a salary of $6,000 per year.

Sessions.

FRANKFORT, KY., Jan. 19.—The General Assembly starts on the third week of the session fully organized in both branches and ready for the serious business before it. Already 198 bills have been introduced in the House and 104 have been offered in the Senate, all of them having been referred to committees, so that with the consideration of these measures alone and the other hearings, investigations and "probes" already authorized the coming legislative week ought to be a busy one and furnish plenty of interest to the people of the

The "extra help" proposition is still "up in the air" with the outcome problematical. The resolution is now before Gov. McCreary, and there is a presistent rumor afloat that he will not approve it, but allow it to become effective without his signature. Even then there is the usual talk that the State Auditor will decline to issue warrants for the pay of the "extra help," or that if he does it will be stopped by mandamus proceedings.

> Most of the 302 bills already introduced in the Senate and House are expected to be printed and on the desks of the members before the week is well under way, and then committe meetings will be in order. Several important measures have been introduced and the hearings on these promise to be spirited and interesting. The most important "dry" measure so far offered is the Forest Senate bill providing that 25 per cent. of voters of the entire county may call a local option election under the per cent. of the voters of each prelaw prescribes.

There is also a movement among some of the leaders to put the "soft pedal" on some of the numerous investigations and "probes" on the ground that the proper distinction is not being drawn between an inspaction of the various departmets, bureaus and institutions to learn of their New York's gunmen are serving actual needs and requirements on which to base the amount of approin the electric chair would probably priations they are entitled to, and an 'investigation or probe," which they say naturally carries the inference of irregularities and wrongdoing.

PATIENTS TREATED SUCCESS-FULLY WITH TUBE OF RADIUM

A tube containing radium, the existence of which was unknown to the public as well as to many of the medical profession has been successfully used by Dr. Charles Russell Hanock, a surgeon, in three patients in the last three weeks. Dr. Hancock told of his use of the tube, which, he said, belonged to Dr. George H. Erap-Thomas a bacteriologist of Bloomfield,

The tube was purchased L. Dr. Earp-Thomas from Mme. Curie when the Curries had discovered radium and had only four tubes of it. Dr. Hancock recalled having heard Dr. Earp-Thomas tell of his purchase from Mme. Curie when Dr. Howard A. Kelly, the Baltimore surgeon, recently lectured on his experiments with radium. Dr. Hancock immediately communicated with Dr. Earp-Thomas, who consented to loan the tube for treatment of patients.

The first case treated by Dr. Hancock was that of a young girl, one of whose eyes had been removed because of cancer, only to have the cancer recur, despite the operation. The radium treatments removed the inflamation from the cancer and most of the pain.

The second case was that of a woman on whom an operation had been performed for cancer of the breast. The cancer had decreased in size and the pain was lessened.

ANGE IMPROVEMENT WILL

INCREASE MEAT SUPPLY

Albert E. Potter, Associate Fore , U. S. Forest Service, made an ad ess before the National Woodgrow s' Association, at Salt Lake Cit, I said that the question of mea n' involved in the methods o razing on the National forests. He and the statement that ove azed ranges can be improve cker through use than they coul-if they were left idle. He points out that the forage reirces on the National forests repr. t a valuable asset upon which no only the welfare of the stockmen de ads, but that of a large proportion the people. The task of the Gov nment has been to work out a plan hich would develop this resource id promote its use to the fullest ex nt without harming tree growth. During the first three years of ad inistration, from 1905-7, the problem f the service was to take care of reas which had been badly overgrazd, and a material reductionhad to e stopped. From the very beginnng, the forest service invited the co peration of the stockmen and con sulted with them regarding the pracicability of the plans which were to e adopted. This co-operation was secured through the various stockrowers' associations and it was so successful that similar associations have grown up among other users of he National forests.

Before range control was put into effect, the feed belonged to the man who got his stock on the land first, though there was no way by which he could hold it except by physical force. Under such a system might made right, and the only thought was to get what feed there was while it lasted. This condition led to serious controversy and out of it grew the range wars which often resulted in loss of life and property. Under the present control, right prevails, and had nothing else been accomplished, Mr. Potter says, the removal of this and evil alone would have made the -hile.

work worth ---But he goes still further that the systematic use of the has stopped loss of forage and that | the feed formerly wasted has been putting the stock in better condition, with the result that, in many cases, the steekmen have been able to sell beef and mutten direct from the ranges where they were before producing only animals which had to befed and conditioned before they could be put on the market.

He called attention to the experiments of the Government in artificially re-seeding the grazing areas to cultivated grasses, and showed that ( in some cases the forage crop has been increased as much as 400 per cent. He maintained, however, that this method is both slow and expensive and said that the great part of the range lands must be improved by protection and natural re-seeding, for the next 20 years at least. He says, too, that investigations have estabreseeding can be accomplished best by a rotation system of grazing based upon the simple principle that grazing aids in scattering and planting the seed after the seed has been given an opportunity to mature. Reports show that areas protected until after seed maturity and then grazed, as compared with areas absolutely protected for the whole year against grazing, are approximately 50 per cent. better, and probably 200 per cent. better than range which has not been protected at all. This means that ranges can be improved faster in use than they can be in idleness and the principle is being adopted on many of the forests. He also spoke of the new open sys-tem of handling sheep, which is simply quieter herding during the day and bedding the sheep where night overtakes them. He contrasts this with the old plan of herding sheep close by the use of dogs and returning them each night to a fixed bed ground. The old plan, of course, rendered certain areas absolutely bare and the going from and returning to the bed grounds trampled a great deal of forage. He estimates that an increase of 10 to 20 per cent. has been added to the carrying capacity of the ranges and that 5 pounds weight has been added per lamb, because they have not been harassed by herding or forced to trail long distances to and from bed grounds. On 5,000,000 lambs this means 25,000,000 pounds added to the 'sheepmen's salable product, and to the country's meat supply. He gave an amusing instance of Government experiment in which it was attempted to try out the old alongside of the new system, but it was found impossible to secure a sheep owner who would return to the old method, except through a bonus. The change in handling has been in large part responsible for the building up of the Madison forest, which there enabled an increase in the number of sheep grazed from 90,000 to 107,000, with promises of further increases of several thousand.

One objection to the new method of handling sheep brought up by many owners has been that the herders who were used to the close system would not adopt the new one. The associate forester says that herders naturally take a pride in having their sheep look well and that since they are coming to realize that open herding means better sheep, they volun-

In conclusion, Mr. Potter mentioned other studies and experiments which the forest service is undertaking to help stock growers secure a better utilization of the forest resources and said that the success secured in the work has been due largely to the hearty co-operation of the stockmen.

SAND CLAY ROADS AND THE TIME TO WORK-THEM.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 20. There are at present about 35,000 miles of sand clay roads in the ern States, according to the Office of is damp. If the working of the roads is deferred until late in the Summer much more difficult to put in proper condition, but the cost of repair is greater than if they were worked early in the Spring. The popularity of this type of road is of nursery stock. due to the facts that it is cheap, comparatively firm and durable, easy to construct and repair, and that the country of origin to be free from materials out of which is it built are plentiful in many sections of the

The water is poured carefully into the sand until it reaches the point of overflowing. The volume of water removed from the second vessel represents approximately the proportion of clay needed. The proper proportion of sand and clay can best be determined, however, as the work progresses, as some clay will contain more sand than others. In fact, clays are very frequently found which already contain about the right proportion of sand

If the road to be treated is sandy, the surface is first leveled off and crowned with a road machine, the crown being about one-half inch to the foot from the center to the sides. #### WHAT ADVERAISING DID.

The 1913 newspaper advertising did great many things for millions and millions of people.

How much of the good you took unto yourself depended upon how carefully you considered your favorite newspaper and what it offered you in valuable information.

It spoke an interesting and everchanging story of all the things for which you spend your money. It told you the best time to buy, the best places to buy and the best things to buy. Manufacturers joined hands with retailers and explained by word and picture the merits of countless brands of merchandise that you were inter-
